

Odour Control Unit air inlet pipe – what comes in

This graph shows the amount of Hydrogen Sulphide (H₂S), the gas causing the odours, in the air drawn into the Odour Control Unit. The volume is shown in parts per million. The variations are typically due to increased flows of sewage coming into site, resulting in more odours in the air being drawn into the Odour Control Unit.