- A relatively gentle walk, this route encircles the beautiful Fewston Reservoir in the charming Washburn Valley. Crossing over Fewston embankment, you're spoilt for choice as you're presented with spectacular views over Fewston Reservoir and down the valley across Swinsty Reservoir.
- Why not make a day of it! You can extend your walk by exploring some of the other nearby routes (Fewston and Timble lngs), which can be found in our online walking guide section. You can also access the start of our Swinsty Reservoir walk from Swinsty Moor car park.

Route Description:

Starting at Swinsty Moor car park (point 1), at the southern end of Fewston Reservoir dam, leave the car park by the main entrance. Cross the road into the wood and take the left-hand path downhill to the path running along the western shore of the reservoir. This path is well defined and easy to follow and, for most of its length, is within a few metres of the water.

Follow the path around the reservoir keeping the reservoir on your right. At point 2 bear left, then continue following the path past point 3 and through the woodland. Shortly afterwards, the path veers right down a slope towards the reservoir and then bears left across a bridge over Thackray Beck.

Continue on the path, keeping the reservoir on your right, until you reach Blubberhouses car park (point 4). Follow the path on the right-hand edge of the car park to the steps and ramp leading up to the main road (A59). At the top of the steps / ramp, turn right on the pavement alongside the A59 for approximately 80 metres, then turn right at point 5 through a gap in the fence to return towards the reservoir via a ramped path.

Follow the well-defined footpath, keeping the reservoir on your right. At point 6, bear left through the gap in the wall, where there is a wooden gate to your right. Continue along the well-defined footpath through the woodland to point 7.

At point 7, you can either bear right and head down the steep, stone steps or continue straight on and follow the ramped path. Both routes lead to the same entrance to the road – please be aware of moving traffic at this point. Turn right along the pavement, following the road past the reservoir house, and then keeping Fewston reservoir on your right.

At the southern end of the embankment, cross over the road at point 8 and take the footway on the opposite side of the road. Follow the path uphill towards the entrance to Swinsty Moor car park (point 1).
